2006 New Braunfels House Austin, Texas

Project Description

A ClaytonLevyLittle design/build project, this small ranch house is a retirement home for a preacher and his wife. Extended family also live on the ranch in separate houses. The design concept is a modern expression of the barn vernacular. An open floor plan includes a tall living and dining room that flows into to the kitchen. A guest bedroom, master bedroom, and exercise and sewing room form the remainder of the house. A large screened porch and fire pit help connect the house to its natural hill country setting.
